OUR FAVORITE HIGHLIGHTS...

BASQUE

Northern Nevada's Basque influence is prominent with the many boarding houses peppered across northern Nevada, and stopping at any one of them guarantees a satisfying meat-filled, oftentimes garlicky meal served family style, with a Picon Punch to wash it all down.

A Picon Punch, Nevada's unofficial state drink, is made with an Amaro liqueur, soda water, grenadine, splash of lemon, and a brandy floater.

ROADSIDE DINERS + BURGER JOINTS

It's no secret that Las Vegas and Reno go big on the over-the-top luxury dining and exquisite all-you-can-eat extravaganzas. But you can also count on the rest of the Silver State's cities and towns to show up where it counts - bringing some of the tastiest, classic American food faves to life with a tried-and-true Nevada flair. From Basque chorizo patty melts to the Middlegate Monster burger challenge, backed up with decadent pies and homemade milkshakes, a flavor-filled Nevada road trip is one your taste buds will never forget.

SAGEBRUSH SALOONS

Throughout Nevada, you can find bars and saloons decorated with original red oil lamps and squeaky 19th-century wood floors, holdovers from the days when men and women came out West to strike it rich in gold and silver. These Sagebrush Saloons each have their own personality and charm, and attract both road trip warriors and history hounds alike.

BUFFETS & AYCE SUSHI

Every day, thousands of people will go to each and every one of Nevada's 136 buffets, and while Nevada doesn't have the most buffets of any state overall, the Silver State still has roughly one buffet for every 20,875 people. Of the 136 buffets in the state, only 72 of them are in Las Vegas, which means some of the best buffets are beyond the Strip.
